The closest thing I have heard of is a clone of wolapi and the same software that EA used on the server.

This woul dmean people would have to download the new wolapi file, but it means you could release patches in the same way EA did.

This is not 100% server side as you would need the hack wolapi file, and also it is nowhere near download on demand when joining the server.

Have you heard of something different? And if so who do I need to be talking too?
