

---

Subject: Re: Jelly Mod Cheating?

Posted by Herr on Fri, 22 Jun 2007 19:28:03 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

Maybe I am taking it a little personal yes, because I thought everyone could get along with you and the other way around. But apparently you have no idea what you just did.

If one of our moderators is cheating, it's an internal affair. And it should be handled within the community. The renegade community has no benefit whatsoever from you posting it here and it will only create a mud-throw contest at our server. You should know better.

Not receiving a confirmation e-mail is truly a weak excuse. Let me sum up the options you had. -Join IRC and talk to one of our moderators, I think you actually joined our server but only wanted to talk to an admin. We'll have the patience to wait for an admin then. You send me a pm if I was around, I was away for 5 min but before I was back you left our irc. Apparently you had some valuable information which could not wait for an admin. Either way I do not mind, you could have talked to me.

-There's the jellyforum, if you did not get a confirm mail, why not contact us, there are several people who can fix that.

-Then there's the renegadeforum's private messaging option. A simple pm to either me or Jelly would have been suited and useful.

Instead you decide to pull our server through the renegade-community-dirt with an internal affair which does not even contain evidence, wish you would have thought about that.

Now you state you have never been wrong on something like this? So I should take your word above the word of one of my mods just because you always seem to pick out the cheaters in the game?

I don't think you thought this case over. Take the innocent-until-proven-guilty principle, how would I apply this on our moderator? What am I supposed to do now? Test him in-game? I am pretty sure that if he even cheated, he would turn it off now. Nothing has shown in the BIATCH logs or anything. Your fraps movie failed. So here I am, a jelly-admin without any proof, the only indication I have is a guy who's always right in picking cheaters. Next time please think these things over before you post and the way you post it, you would save us a lot of time, reputation and frustration.

No need to thank me actually.

I will ask Beirney to explain why he is not cheating.

---