The buildings did NOT fall at "freefall speed". Where do you get your data?

How do YOU know that the amount of dust and debris found all over NYC isn't enough for two large buildings, and why would there be less if there was explosives used rather than building collapsing through structural weakness?

Why do you completely ignore several pictures available that show obvious plane debris, including a piece of the fuselage with American Airlines coloring still visible?

Reference: Pic of the debris referenced from a more detailed report proving that it WAS a plane at this link though it is not the most detailed proof I have come across, it is sufficient.

Where are all the people on that flight? If you remember, there were a few moderately-famous people on many of the flights, including the wife of a senator on the one that hit the Pentagon who was scheduled to be on "Politically Incorrect with Bill Maher" that night and was flying to LA for her appearance. How did all the local firefighters and police officers not notice someone moving in the 60 dead passengers from that flight, and how did they manage to injure all those people with consistent injuries to a plane crashing into the building?

Also, there was a large exterior generator near the impact site. If it had been a missile that hit the building, it would have been blown AWAY from the building. But instead, it was pushed TOWARDS the building and part of the top sheared off by a plane heading TOWARDS the building. How do the conspiracy theorist whackjobs explain that?

Look, I am fully open minded to the fact that there's probably a fuckload of stuff that we aren't being told about the events up to, on, and after that day, but to tell me that a plane didn't hit the pentagon is just ludicrous, unintelligent, and practically insane.
