I agree with you IronBalls, but being good and bad has many different qualities but if people don't show to others that being good is a role that everyone has to participate, then things would be ugly "pernamently."

My suggestion is that being positive is choice we all should choose.

Yes, someone better that doesn't show themselves much in public, but if were all this "great" then who's better?

Depends on the map and the choice of GDI and Nod
