I don't think anyone here can really tell you what a good ISP is. In reality, it totally depends on the area in which you live. Comcast may be good in one area, and their service may suck in another. Although you can use the company as a rule of thumb, because truly some ISP's are just better than others. I would say either go for Comcast or Qwest myself. I have Qwest, and my internet never really goes down and the speed is decent.
