I have been inactive for a month (due to having very little free time for almost the entire month of june), but I thought about this for the whole length and have come to my decision. I have decided to resign from this position. I have lost all of the interest that was once there. I feel that I have done the best I could, but I want to move on to something else.

Thank you everyone for electing me. Also, thank you Crimson for the opportunity (and for putting up with me ).
