I don't know if one already exists, but if it doesn't then you could create your own script and attach it to the cnc vehicles in level edit, or perhaps just attach it to them when they are created in the scripts.dll source code.

But as said before, the stealth effect will only work for clients using updated scripts.dll, meaning any client without the update would see people as normal. Pretty gay...

I imagine there is a script that stops a building from taking damage because in inf only mode in ssgm it stops building from taking damage. I would look there first.

Try setting the model to null to remove that stuff...
