unexpected hdd failure? What kind of bullshit generic hdd are you using? Ive had a 40GB WD for like 6+ years in my home server P3 box, and not a single problem. Its all about how you voltage it and etc. Hdd's dont crash because of software reasons (attacks or etc), IF you know what your doing. Raid is useless in a setup you trust and don't expect something to happen. If you do, its only going to be your fault in the end.
