I was talking to Flyingfox about this earlier today, and it made me decide to write a follow-up for any of you that are curious:

The security was nothing. I could of walked in with a gun in my pants. It was a pocket check, a noninvasive pat down the sides of my body and a check at my collar and ankles.

I didn't try to bring anything in. I figured that was the wisest choice. Friends of mine brought in weed and blazed it on rides, and another took MDMA right before he entered the park. Also lots of people went high, drunk or both.

It was a horrible night. I should of taped a flask full of Bacardi 151 to my chest or something. Thanks to some circumstances, I kicked it with and odd number of people I didn't want to. The liquor would of loosened me up and made the trip somewhat decent.

Also, due to my stupid school's negligence I lost my DAP. I tried talking to administrators, but one claimed that "bringing such items was not allowed" - which is a lie - so I gave up.
