You wouldn't believe the number of different websites I have tried from Google searches to get the card working, is seems to half work sometimes but refuses to detect any networks, even though Linux says its working fine. And I know its not a network problem as I had my laptop stood next to it showing full signal strength.

From what I can tell later revisions of the same card work on ndiswrapper, but the first revision, which I have, will not Maybe I will swap it with the later revision from the study pc and see if that works sometime
