I know Sony BMG has actually been smart, and has uploaded over 1500 of its music videos from years past, and they are commercial free. That's not only a good way to get people to buy the music from today, but it's also good publicity for bands that are no longer on the radio today. I already came across five videos by the hair/glam band 'Warrant' . Might mean a few more album sales for them too.
