I still think that BK has the right to prohibit people from eating on their property (outside on the parking lot) but I don't think they should have the power to prohibit people from eating inside their cars even if the car was in their lot.

I dunno about others views' but to me, they simply cannot come inside my car. It's ridiculous.

Besides, think about how the heck will they be able to enforce this ridiculous law? I don't think this law can be enforced other than the sternely worded sign.

Oh I know! BK hires extra staff on parking lot patrols to enforce this law...they go around the lot and look into cars where there are people eating and kindly point to the sign and tell them to stop.
