Its a great card. I haven't found a game that he won't play as of yet.

Ah nice, might look into it.

Don't really need a top of the range card or something that gives me 1000s fps.. just a nice well built card that will last for a long time without burning out, which can support any upcoming UE3 game and crysis.

600MB, what a weird number?

PS:ATI is FAIL and AIDS their new card is much bigger then the 8800 and much crappier!

I think you've misunderstood the abbreviation. 525M/600M doesn't stand for the memory. It stands for the core speed. 525Mhz.

On-Topic. My card is running slightly lower than the 600M version. My current speeds are. 577Mhz Core. 776Mhzx2 Memory speed, I've had it hit 86c underload. All in all it does its job well for £100.
