How in the fuck do you suppose we "control" them?

Regardless, why should we control them? The people need to control themselves. We can't control the people, and I know everybody arguing for gun control uses this as an argument, but the ideology that since we can't control the people, we must control the weapon is absurd. You're punishing people like me who would control themselves with their weapons. Just because you can't control the people doesn't give you the right to infringe on the rights of the people.

Again, who the fuck are you to tell me that I can't be trusted to be responsible for myself and my actions? Fuck the lot of you.

You misunderstood me, Other Governments sell them, Doesn't matter to who, As long as they profit, And they make their way to criminals.
Yet if every law-abiding citizen (or most) owned guns, that wouldn't matter.
