I rely on my router firewall, does ok.

Norton is very hard to remove. Repair install three times, several "Norton Removal Utilities" and still it is present. Grr. Reformat...

No, what I don't want is Microsoft installing stuff on my PC without me checking first, because previous updates from them have broken things, like my sound. I need control, or else, I lose my sound, or something like that.

(The last paragraph is aimed at Puddle, who seems to think the internet is for pron. Besides, anyone with any sense would use a Linux live CD, no record, spyware can't run on Linux (or most can't) and it's not permanant, anyway)
