Not that graphics matter to me, but I disagree. Even then, they weren't that great. There's such a lack of detail with the low polygon count and the low resolution textures. Playing the game without AF makes everything that's not within 10 feet of you look muddy.

Bad graphics and a bad single player are the two main things that made the reviews so negative, which is why the game never got popular, even though the multiplayer (which is the real game) gameplay was/and still is great.
