Dante is right in doing this. Just take a look at the mod forum and see how many "new mods" have not been continued due to them releasing a model preview then seeing 10 pages of flames. There is not point in releasing something until it's finished or at least at a stage where it can be put into a decent perspective of whats to come. But I have to say well done to the Renegade Evolution team for what they are doing and have done in the past. Great work guys
