as i said in a previous thread.

your model may be nice under that less than perfect skin.

your skin will make or break.

here are some hints. add panels, hinges, handles, decals (like warning), etc.. to the skin in the appropriate places. check out the med tank skin in renegade, it has all kinds of detail that the actual model doesn't even have, like the entire back engine access area is skin only.

play with these ideas, change your ambient color from bright white to a lower toned down light grey (that will help with that uber brightness that it is giving off).

some suggestions, hope you take them
