

---

Subject: Re: are we alone?

Posted by Ryu on Thu, 04 Oct 2007 23:07:58 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

Crimson wrote on Thu, 04 October 2007 17:35: I believe the universe is WAY too fucking big for there NOT to be some other species somewhere in it. Whether or not we've made contact with them or vice versa is debatable. It seems there exists a reasonable probability that the conditions that make Earth habitable by living beings could also exist on some other rock spinning around one of the other billions of stars out there.

But, I am glad that you are interested in the possibility of life on Earth.

QFT.

oh right.. My speech..

If we're here and alive, There must be others like us or different but still 'smart' like us somewhere in the universe..

Donate to NASA so they can find them, they might have super cute kittens!

---