Yep. I've thought this before too. It's pretty stupid that "shit" is so much different than "crap" or "poo". Or "Damn" is different than "Darn". They all have the same meaning, what's the point in censoring them if you're gonna still say it but with different words? I mean, I might aswell swear in another language then.

I mean yeah, calling someone something vulgar is understandable to be angered by or whatever. But c'mon, if I just go "Damn" instead of "Darn", I'm all of a sudden a horrible person?