On another note:

What if there are Aliens and they have a Monotheistic view strikingly similar to Christianity?

There would be a huge war over it. Until one of us is completely wiped out.

I think hes saying that they basically have the same religion as us. Like the people in the bible just have different names or something like that. If they had nearly the same view why would we fight over it?

Wouldn't something like aliens being athiest or having some compeletely different religion other than christianity really change your views as a christian? I think it would. Why didn't Jesus tell us about aliens? Are we not alone in the universe? Maybe it's possible we were just something that happened by mistake in the infinite universe and nothing special made us?
