

---

Subject: Re: How old should kids be before they start fucking?

Posted by cheesesoda on Fri, 19 Oct 2007 20:41:20 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

razorblade001 wrote on Fri, 19 October 2007 16:36cheesesoda wrote on Fri, 19 October 2007 16:30Edit: razorblade, read your first paragraph. How did I get the wrong idea? Just like you, I ignored the rest of your post.

I said MORALS are getting stricter, not the generations themselves.

When something gets more strict, that doesn't necessarily mean in terms of rules and enforcement. I meant that there are more and more different reasons for people to make up more morals.

However, as a result of this, more and more freedoms are being given to the new generation because the previous generation (This generation's parents) don't want to be like their previous generation (Your parent's parents)

Morals AREN'T getting more strict, though. They've been the same for generations. The only "new" morals that could be stemming from recent times would be based on technology, and even then they're just new adaptations of old morals.

Edit: Just stop saying "strict".

strict

-adj

1. characterized by or acting in close conformity to requirements or principles

---