If you have them, what's stopping you from using them?

If you don't have them, then what's stopping you from downloading them and using them?

Bandwidth, willingness to download, taking risks of viruses, time out of my day, ect.

Self restraint isn't a good answer because how do we, random people over the internet, know you can control yourself?

The bandwidth to download a cheat is insignificant, and if you have the willingness to use the cheats, then you have the willingness to download them. Time out of your day? lol? If you have time to play Renegade then you have time to download it. The only good point you bring up is taking risks of viruses.

My point is that, if you have the willingness to cheat, you will do it no matter whether the cheats are on your computer or not.

How am I supposed to know that YOU can control yourself from downloading and using cheats on your computer? Oh?
