Not more or less than the USA...

Also, I see you are revealing your short-sightedness? I mean, even though you might not like 1 element, who says there aren't like a 100 others that you do like?

For ex. a working public healthcare system, where you can get insured at decent rates, and the insurance companies wont always try to pull you a leg, when you in fact need some support.

But where does that healthcare system come from? Taxes, right? Where do taxes come from?

Tax payers, correct? In other words, money stolen from the people. :\

Wrong, they come from proper government control on insurance companies.

Besides that, I don't see taxes as stealing or something, for 1 simple reason, without it, the world would be a mess.

You can't charge 1 person for something like police, or even something as simple as street lights.

For those kinds of things you need taxes.

You can debate about whether or not you need them for things like social security, true.
