i mean put yourself in his shoes, you wake up at night to find some robbers/thieves beating the shit out of your family member.

to me its enough justification to kill them, hell i would have shot them in their face with prob no remorse.

To me, that is a justification to put you in jail. They where running away at the time he fired the weapon, therefore they weren't causing harm AT THE TIME of the gun being fired, that is why he should be held accountable for murder.

If he fired the gun as they where beating up a family member, it would be a different story.

However, even still it should be charged for murder, however in self defense. But still, there is no excuse to kill someone.
