If we were to legalize cocaine, wouldn't a crack-head mother be imposing cocaine on her unborn child? I mean, it is her body after all...It just so happens someone else lives there too... Irresponsible people are going to be irresponsible regardless. The crack-whore is going to use cocaine when she's pregnant, regardless of the legality. Women still smoke tobacco and drink alcohol while they're carrying their child. Making something illegal doesn't make people responsible. In fact, it makes them less responsible because of the risks they take to get the drug they want/need.
