No, that's all network. I encode my music at 128 or 192 KBPS, but that could be three of us at once, probably two. Then the game, and the file transfers would be ISO's of game disks (we refuse to buy more than one copy so we can play a LAN game...) and things like that, all between the three Gigabit PCs and the server.

my internet is a "subjective rating - awesome"ly crap 1.3 Mbits. I could knock my local exchange down with a stick....
