In our old house, I woke up one night because I needed a wizz, I got up and looked at my window, And seen a cat sitting on the inside of the window ledge.

I thought to myself "Meh, It must be our cat treacle" But when I got closer, It looked like our other cat, dip-see (lol, we even named treacle's kittens Fat bastard and Johnny Vegas. :d )

So you know, I went and did my business, Came back to my room, and the cat was gone.

At first I thought nothing of it, But the floor boards were squeaky as hell, and I would have made a little bang..

The next morning, I got up and had breakfast and left for school, the door was locked by the mortise lock (Door can't open unless you unlock it with a key) and out cat dip-see came in..

A few months later, Our next door neighbor told us when no one lived in our house, He buried his dead cat in our garden.

Then I was like "holy shit."
