

---

Subject: Re: A question on Iraq expenditures

Posted by cheesesoda on Wed, 28 Nov 2007 02:22:25 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

razorblade001 wrote on Tue, 27 November 2007 21:12 ignorant, maybe, but he is right... Just because money is being spent on the war, doesn't mean when the war is over, money will start growing on trees.

The economy is based on the market and how the people react to products in the market. How is some conflict in the middle east going to effect the demand of people who want an iPhone in the US?

Actually, the weapons industry is huge. Of course, our government buys from American military goods corporations. So a lot of what our government is spending overseas is coming back into our nation.

Inflation isn't about the demand and supply of a market. Inflation is how saturated the economy is. The more people spend, the better, but not when the government keeps forcing money into the economy.

---