The only reason why I don't want people to see is because many times people read what I type, and never go back to it. So that means I need to waste another post telling people that I edited my above post.

You have a good point. Eitherway, a lot of people use the forum by reading the information without posting anything. So, it benefits them in the long-run.

This forum has lots of people who use it but not all of them post regularly everyday like you and me.
