I don't think I can read the rest of your post without laughing my ass off.

Why? I mean the "oh exposed to toxic waste" kind of mutation.

All though.. I don't think your nerve system can control a third arm or leg.
I have one word for you: frogs.

Some species of frogs can come back to life if they freeze themselves because when they get cold they have a crap load of adrenaline pumped through out their system, I don't see how their mutants though. ^_-
