
Subject: problems with CP2 and my keycode
Posted by me890 on Wed, 16 Jan 2008 09:38:32 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

guys, im wondering if any of you could help me out here.... my account is named me890, i just installed Renguard today (played a part of a match prior to instalation, when i decided to get Renguard) because i am against cheating. however, when i tried to play after the Core Pack2 install was completed i got a message stating that my key code was invalid (SID: 0;), however this is the exact key code as i have recieved on my operations manual from back when renegade was first released. now i didnt recieve a ban (i would know...). and besides that, the match i played prior to the installation, it did work so....

what should i do here? i am able of sending print screens of my official game pack / operations manual & keycode to an admin if needed.

Factors that might be in play:

over the years, both my Nod, as well as my GDI disks have broken due to father and brother that are not that secure or calm when it comes down to software / hardware not working, to an extent of cracks in both CD's making them unable to run or install. i have solved this problem by borrowing the instalation disks from a friend who has the first decade pack. then i use DAEMON tools virtual drive and a crack from gamecopyworld to make it read as if the disk was in so i can play.

the reason for this is, not that i play the game illigally, but that i cant find the game in ANY retail store anymore (tried to find it for several years), and my keycode / account should both still be good, aswell as that i still have all the (broken) disks, manual, case, ect.

i would very mutch love to hear what you guys know about this....

yours sincerely,

Erik Stolman (me890)
