Not all religions keep people from murdering.

True, but not all religions make people murder.

There are Christians who use their religion to control and supress the thoughts and feelings of others. This amounts to cruelty. There are millions of Christians in the world who believe sickness/diseases is the result of sin. What hypocrisy!

and where did you get this information from? Every member in my family is christian, and not one of them think that disease and sickness is a result of "sin."

Christianity has enough clauses in it for it to be intrepreted so much that it is used as a means to control others.

Christianity has little control over my life. All it has done is teach me what is right and what is wrong. What is so bad about that?
