The many many christians I know, I'm saying, are representing the christian population. I'm not talking about the World population.

I'm symbolizing Christians I know for the general population.

General population of what country may I ask? You surely are not representing the world's population.

Ever heard of the Bible Belt? That's the closest place you can go in the continental United States to find such Christian whacks who believe in absolutely ridiculous things. I have been there and seen such Christians in many chruches.

Irony.
