As said in this thread, v00d00 found the calls and then made a function for Zunnie. Zunnie then made use of the call to bring the building back to life through a chat hook that cost x amount of cash. However v00d00 never found a way to update the clients purchase terminals after a dead building had been revived. Clients wishing to use the purchase terminal have to leave and rejoin. Or they can use switches which have a poke and buy script on it.

I had nothing to do with the development of that server mod BTW, I actually cannot stand the mod and think it's quite tacky TBH. I do still host it, but that's only because I always seem to get side-tracked with other things rather than make a replacement (although it is in development, I just never seem to make time for it).
