Holy crap.

I didn't know that the daytona only had a 5.7 in it. It is a cool looking car though and they are better looking than a regular stock charger.

EDIT: My dad estimates that with the 3:11 gear ratio in the back, the 6000 puound caddy is good for about 130. It will also match an early to mid 90s corvette from a dead standstill with 500 lbs of torque at 2000 rpm.
