
Subject: Re: F*ck you Harry Potter bashers...
Posted by Starbuzz on Sat, 23 Feb 2008 14:19:52 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

Blazer wrote on Thu, 21 February 2008 23:44I'm sure your parents had good intentions, so I wouldn't hate them for it.

They got on the anti-Harry Potter bandwagon without even reading the book. This bandwagon assumes that the book teaches how to do magic. These are the types of people who would hate anything and worse, take action to prevent others from doing what they themselves don't like to do.

I agree with everything else you said. It maybe the way of things.

IronWarrior wrote on Fri, 22 February 2008 00:20I get really angry when I hear of people doing that to their kids, it's wrong in so many ways and to be honest, their views are so backward like muslims reading books backwards, something really wrong with it.

Yeah, I simply can't stand this backwardness. It is the divisivness that really pisses me off. The "I am this and this so you can't be that and that" attitude makes me mad. This is why there are many extra unneeded wars today.

@Razor: True but what they did was no different than what the Taliban did to the people: take away their TV's.

R315r4z0r wrote on Fri, 22 February 2008 00:53I can understand that your parent's beliefs are what they are, but there is a limit.

I agree but this is not understood by people like this. For them, even the sky is not the limit. As long as they feel they are right, they will do it and will impose that on others.
