

---

Subject: Re: Entrepreneurship homework
Posted by Goztow on Fri, 14 Mar 2008 07:44:44 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

I like the idea. Not all of us are certain on what to do, so we could learn it in this kind of shop.

I'm not sure if you could make profit, though. You'd need a pretty large stock of spare parts, but the problem is that the computer business evolves rapidly. If you buy parts today, they'll be less valuable in a week so if you can't get rid of them, that's pure loss.

So you'd probably only have popular parts and would need to order others. This would mean that there's not that much of an advantage left over Internet ordering, except for "help in case of emergency" .

An idea: you could probably also buy and resell 2nd hand parts from/to people upgrading. Or at least give a x % off on relatively recent parts which u could then resell to people who cannot afford new parts.

Ignore ferkhat, he's gone again.

---