An alarm system AND a gun is even more handy, too.

And don't give me the bullshit of "but kids commit suicide with guns!" or "but there's people who use them for bad purposes!". For one, it's easier to catch someone who uses a registered and legal gun.

For two, if some kid brings his parents gun to his school, not only is that the parents fault, but also retarded that the school is too dumb to put up metal detectors and whatnot.

I guarentee you that shit like the Virginia Tech tragedy wouldn't have had near the casualties had any the studants had guns.

A home security system can't quite stop the threat of some kid going nuts. But a gun sure can.
