It takes 1 minute to start getting brain damage, if there is no blood flow. That is ample time to even try to give CPR. We all know how to do it, we've all at least seen it on TV and know how it works. Looks to me like everyone just gathered round him and did nothing.

If that ever happened to me, and my heart stopped for enough time to give me brain damage I would want to it to stay stopped. That's not a life to live and someone has to pay the £Ms for me.
