So we have established that some people are having problems with connecting to the server. Has anyone had any luck resolving this?

I couldn't believe when I went to westwood tech support and looked for server issues there reply was they don't provide live support for any of the C&C games anymore. I think that is pretty lame considering all the money C&C has made for them and how many people are still using their games.

Just needed to vent, EA is the largest game provider you think they would provide better support to there customers. I think I'll reconsider buying anymore EA software in the future.
