I would much prefer this money to go to the elderly people that actually have to make decisions of whether to have food or heat in the winter. I'm pretty sure if the amount was cut down suddenly people would be starting to find jobs that were apparently never there before. To be frank the elderly deserve it a lot more than someone that doesn't want to work in a supermarket (even only temporarily). These elderly people have done their bit and have paid taxes throughout their lives not to mention the fact that quite a few of them were involved in World War 2.
