Someone who doesn't get offended and who can take insults without dishing them back out. To have EA support this patch, it is crucial that the TT team refrains from swearing at the community. It is of uttermost importance to have professional mannerism when undergoing something like this project.

Agreed, this has to be a more "professional" thing that everything else that the community (namely TT developers) have worked on in the past. For our sake, to get EA to accept it.
