One thing i'd want to point out, i know many of you think that the furry side of life is just sexual related, and many closed minds think that, and believe it, spreading the word, but that isn't me.

Yes, i've made mistakes in the past where i've posted things i shouldn't have, and said things that didn't need to be said. I was actually in playfully immature moods at those times and i don't take part in, or condone any actions i've said. I was joking around, per se.

YES, some furs are into it for the sex. YES, some do go around humping anything they see, and YES, you have a good right to point that out. But unless you actually know what i do in the fandom, don't presume that i'm part of that majority that does get into the kinky side of things.

I am looking for a fellow fur mate (partner, whatever you want to call it), but no, i won't be mating with them in fursuits. You don't know how much it costs to buy one of those and keep it in good 'nick', so getting sexual substances on it will ruin it.

To be honest, unless you really know the person you're talking about, don't make presumptions on them based off the majority.

Just wanted to make that clear.
