And make 1 trillion dollars out of the war, for the ignorant people out there, war makes money, if you know where to look. Smile

War makes a lot of money, but that money goes towards the companies (weapons companies, security companies like Blackwater, banks, etc.) involved in the war. Not the society. The 500 billion dollars spent from the tax payer's pockets could've had better use that actually helped America as a whole.

500 billion dollars is $2,147 per American.

Imagine that kind of money going into schools, health care, security in America, charity, streets, communities, and stuff that actually matters. Instead of going to war, losing over 4000 U.S soldiers, and over a million Iraqis.

Of course though, this is all worth it, because the U.S had to disarm Saddam's weapons of mass destructions (which did not exist) and hamper his links to Al Qaeda (which also did not exist) and stabilize the Middle East (which is now far more unstable than before the war)

And yes, we need to bomb Iran back to the stone age, because Israel (which has one of the best armies in the world and can defend itself) is worth another more thousands of U.S lives, billions of more U.S dollars, more hundreds of thousands of Iranian lives, and inevitably more Israeli lives.
