I think the answer is that you kept pushing the issue and didn't shut up when you were asked to. I know you think you have a right to play on a server and that you're the leet old school gosu, but you're not. You don't have to agree with what they do on their server, but the keyword here is "their server" which inherently means "not yours".

You don't go into someone else's home and just do whatever you want, do you? My suggestion to you is to listen next time and don't come here to whine about how you were "mistreated" by some idiot moderating a game server for a dead game.
