Ehm? You are talking about actually standing on top of it, right? Not inside it? Because problem with standing inside a vehicle after entering/leaving has been solved already.

This chance may or may not be possible with the current knowledge about the Renegade engine, but it would probably take weeks to figure out this single thing. I do not think it is worth spending that much time on. Note that some physics things we can change. Blue hell being the most annoying physics bug we fixed.
