No.. because that's basically how hackers are. If you think a hacker is some fat, smelly, 40 year old in his mom's basement that knows a lot about computers and various computer systems, then you are fearing for the wrong reason.

Most hackers are morons with no real grasp on what they are doing and without the concept of what they are doing is right or wrong.

Don't get me wrong, not all hackers are like that, that would just be stereotypical. There are all types of hackers, but for the most part, your basic hacker threat composes of the kind of person I just described.
