This is why I take a lot things to do with the Middle East with a grain of salt. So much of it is bluster, and political posturing, and it has been that way since the 1early 1900's.

I'm sure they will get Nuclear plants, and I have a feeling in a few years, those reactors will likely be General Electric, or Westinghouse reactors built in the good ol' USA.

I believe Iran wants guarantees, and money to operate a civilian nuclear program, and I think the US will let them have it, but with American or Canadian reactors that render the waste ineffective for a nuclear bomb. The big nuclear deal between India, and America will likely set a precedent too.
