My current 7600GT's can run Crysis on medium (with a few settings off), but the main reason im upgrading to the geforce 8 series is for DX10, right now my cards only "really" support DX9 with a DX10 emulation thing installed. Ram im not looking to exceed PC6200+, because im going to stick to dual core (2000 bus), so I will probably be able to get a AMD X2 6000+ to atleast 3.4/3.5, ive gone into things people have mentioned here, but that screws everything up (for example looking for a single better video card), because that means I need to look for new ram, same socket type (am2 has very limited selection, im still extremely confused as to why but k), so this is like a lower end-high end gaming system and its look about $1200, and its easier to just leave it at that, final build:
